CAPTAIN JAMES GUY .- The death of this estimable old man last week was untimaly, in spite of his eighty years, for his was a lusty old age, kept green is the midst of its freely wing ter by a snuny temper, a good heart and a pow erful frame. He was caught against a hawser some time ago on a river steamer, and owed his death to the accident; but perhags, after all, it was better that he should go after so complishing the allotted three score and ten; for no one who knew Captain Guy, the j vial, the amiable and hearty, would desire to keep him in this world as a weak old man. He was strong at all points, and would not have been himself in any other character. Through a vastly varied life on land and sea, he had distinguished himself as much by his integrity as by his courage and energy, and in accodotes he was peerless and unmatched; in fact, a charge ter eccentrie, bold and attrictive, and a per trait that no one who ever met him will ever forget. He never failed to draw a crowd of isteners when in the vein of quaint parration, and co man of his time could more pointedly set forth the characteristies of the men, places and things of note as he had seen them in the pagerama of a varied career. He was the commander of the old Mt. Verson, and the prototype of steamboat captains, and during that part of his life was the intimate associate and friend of John Augustin Washington, who held him to be the best shot, the best story teller and best fellow in the world. It may be and of Captain Guy simply, "This was a man," and Shakspeare could find nothing better to say of the publist of Romans. - Washington Capital

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 27.-1: will be remembered that some weeks ago a horrible murder was committed in the easters part of Henry county, near a smed towe called Sandrifflie, particulars of which were given at the time in sats:aucr. EASILY INCURRED, TERRIBLY OBSTI-NATE is rheumatism. Even at the outset, the ordinary remedies are frequently powerless to cope with it. This is more particularly the case where terdency to it is inherited. It should be combatted before it becomes chronic. When combatted before it becomes chronic. When the first twinges are felt, receurse should be had to Hostetter's atomach Bitters, a depurent which expels from the blood those tritating principles which, by contact, cause inflammation and pain in the muscles and joints. Poisonous medicines which are usually administered for this disease, but which, in a slight overdose, may terminate it by destroying life itself, should be avoided. and this safe and more effective medicine used instead. Those disorders of the bowels, stem-ach and liver which frequently accompany rheumatic and gouty silments, are invariably re-moved by this excellent botanic corrective.
